Banning

Industry: Law Practice
Size: 100
Country: The Netherlands

Banning has been an established name in the Netherlands for more than 50 years, with offices in 's-Hertogenbosch and Amsterdam. The firm and its approximately 70 attorneys are well known for their entrepreneurship, high quality service, in-depth market knowledge and great involvement with clients. As a full service office, BANNING has built up an excellent reputation.

About TIQ

TIQ's automated time tracking software helps legal professionals become more productive and obtain better insights into spent time. The best-of-breed solution constructs high quality and consistent narratives for time entries using intelligent suggestions based on captured activities. Today, TIQ's smart time capture solution is used by more than 60 firms located in over 15 countries.

Established Dutch law firm selects best-of-breed legal time tracking software for more efficient time recording.

TIQ has announced that Banning, an established Dutch Top 50 law firm, has selected TIQ Time as part of an ongoing initiative to update their practice management. Banning will offer TIQ's time capture capabilities to all their fee-earners.

"Staying ahead of the legal game" is part of our newly established mission statement. By continuous investments in knowledge, quality, innovation and state of the art systems, we will be able to maintain our lead. The decision to work with TIQ Time is in line with this vision. It will improve our way of working and create more transparency together with clear and accurate time entries."

Peter van Asten
Chief Operating Officer

TIQ Time offers a range of time recording features, from fully automated time capture to manual timers, supported both on desktop and mobile devices. The software helps fee-earners construct clear and consistent narrative by using smart suggestions based on the captured activities. Up to now, tracking time was part of the legacy financial system at BANNING, lacking mobility and ease of use.

Overall, TIQ Time will improve transparency for BANNING and their clients, providing them with clearer, more accurate and more up-to-date time entries. TIQ Time offers powerful integrations with practice management and financial systems by design.

"As legal IT vendor, we really believe in the power of focus and specialisation. We are proud to deliver one of the most advanced time tracking solutions on the market, and deploy this as a core part of the firm's practice management solution. For Banning this means they can offer their fee-earners a way to effortlessly construct clear narratives and capture all activities throughout the day, without the need to rush an upgrade from the firm's legacy financial system".
